

Providing the strategy, vision and technology necessary to articulate your service offerings on the web...

Planet Media specialized in custom web design and development and commercially operates its Internet business under the trade name of Planet Media Zone™.

We offer a suite of solutions for companies from small to enterprise level.

About the Studio

The company was founded in 1999 by Kurt Whitt, a former Silicon Valley executive with over twenty years experience in international business development, interactive television, and in new media technologies.

Planet Media offers a wide range of professional web design and development services to establish or enhance your presence on the World Wide Web. We utilize a team of highly qualified individuals who specialize in web design, site promotion and e-business architecture.

Additionally, we employ leading edge design and development programs, innovative graphics and imaging software, and the latest in computer technology.

Superior products coupled with an unsurpassed level of customer service perfectly position the company for undertaking any project, regardless of size, scope or level of complexity.
